

BPI WEALTH

FinQuest 2026

UNDERSTAND THE MARKETS, FUND YOUR FUTURE

Background:

According to the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP), only 2 out of 10 Filipino adults (23%) reported having any form of investment in 2025, which is a decrease from 36% in 2021.

Existing initiatives to increase the ease of investing are widespread, through digitalization of investment transactions and reduction of initial investment requirements. Investment offerings have also become embedded within traditional banking services and e-wallets, platforms that 58% of Filipino adults already use (BSP, 2026).

Problem:

To broaden participation in investing, efforts are needed to cultivate a culture where investing is more commonplace, to create wealth and increase the financial resilience of every Filipino.

This challenge is best addressed by focusing on the youth, who are still shaping their financial habits, and stand to benefit most from investing early.

Prompt:

Engaging the youth requires investment products that are designed to meet them where they are—making it easy for them to start investing and build it into a lifelong practice.

How will you redesign investment funds to make investing relevant, accessible, and sustainable for the Filipino youth?

FinQuest 2026 Objectives

- Industry Knowledge: To deepen college students' understanding of investing and the financial industry through exposure to investment funds and asset management.

Competition Phase 1: Your Proposal

Participants are invited to conceptualize an investment fund solution grounded in a clear strategy and compelling investment theme. In this process, students will be encouraged to:

- Define a fund's purpose and structure.
- Identify relevant and forward-looking investment opportunities.
- Present ideas in a manner that makes investing more relatable and accessible to their generation.

Investment Strategy (The Hunt)

What would the youth invest in?

Devise a fund that is based on a sound investment strategy and appeals to young investors.

Research macro trends and sectors to develop a clear investment thesis grounded in data and conviction.

This includes defining the fund's objective, selecting a compelling theme, and identifying securities that best express that thesis.

Distribution and Marketing (The Hook)

What would make the youth start investing?

Identify the key hook or narrative that makes investing feel worth starting today.

By exploring where young adults spend time digitally, devise a campaign that meets them where they are and speaks their language.

The goal is to reframe investing from something intimidating into something empowering and spark the youth's first step into investing.

Customer Journey (The Habit)

What would make the youth stay invested?

Design the investing experience for a young investor, to turn investing from a one-time action into a habit.

Map the end-to-end journey from first awareness to the first peso invested, to staying invested through market ups and downs.

Reduce friction by designing a clear and intuitive experience.
